

Graham Soley is currently an Agricultural Economist at the USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service. He participates in USDA's monthly WASDE publication as part of the cotton committee, and previously developed forecasts and estimates for grains and oilseeds. Graham also interned for the agency in Seoul, South Korea, in addition to working as a TDY employee in Beijing. He received both his BS and MS in Agricultural Economics from the University of Kentucky.